

DAVIS · LEVIN
LIVINGSTON
ATTORNEYS

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Press Contact: media@bradyunited.org; mdavis@davislevin.com

July 16, 2026

Brady Hawaii and Davis Levin Livingston Provide "No Firearms Allowed" Signage for Business Owners Who Want to Ban Guns From Their Private Property

Following the recent Supreme Court decision allowing firearms on private property open to the public by default, Hawaii businesses must post signs informing the public that guns are banned on their property.

Honolulu, HI, July 16, 2026 — In response to the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Wolford v. Lopez, Brady Hawaii, in partnership with the Honolulu-based law office of Davis Levin Livingston, is producing and distributing free signs for Hawaii business owners who wish to communicate that firearms are not permitted on their property.

The Wolford v. Lopez decision, issued June 25 and effective immediately, allows firearms to be carried onto Hawaii private property open to the public unless a property owner affirmatively prohibits them. The law applies to such spaces as restaurants, hotels, shops, malls, and concert venues.

"Hawaii property owners now have to navigate the burden of affirmatively prohibiting firearms," said Mark S. Davis, founding partner of Davis Levin Livingston. "Government can no longer prohibit firearms in local businesses. It is now up to all of us to exercise our right to maintain gun-free premises. We're proud to help Hawaii businesses exercise their property rights and preserve the safe, welcoming spaces they want for their employees and customers."

"It is no coincidence that Hawaii has long had some of the nation's strongest gun safety laws and lowest rates of gun violence," said Erin Davis, Senior Counsel and Director of Litigation at Brady, who was born and raised in Hawaii. "The Wolford decision changed the private property default, but it didn't change what the people of Hawaii want, only Aloha. Most residents believe businesses should be able to remain gun-free, and putting up a sign makes that happen and keeps our community safe."

By properly posting the signs, which follow legal specifications, business owners can legally prohibit a person from carrying firearms onto their property. Signs must be clearly legible from any point of entry onto the premises. Complimentary signs are available by emailing GunSafety@DavisLevin.com or at the Davis Levin Livingston downtown office (Suite 1550, Topa Tower, 745 Fort Street Mall, 10 a.m.–4 p.m.).

Brady: United Against Gun Violence is the nation's oldest gun organization working to free America from gun violence. We believe that changing laws alone won't end our nation's gun violence crisis; we must also change hearts and minds. That's why we take a comprehensive approach to end this epidemic: change the laws, change the gun industry, and change the conversation about guns in America.

Davis Levin Livingston, located in downtown Honolulu, is one of the oldest and most successful Plaintiffs firms in Hawai'i, it has been representing plaintiffs on all of the Hawaiian Islands and the mainland for 50 years. The Davis Levin Livingston Charitable Foundation donates a portion of its fees earned annually to support charitable activities of our community and organizations that support access to justice.